When marketing designs a screenshot

December 17, 2003

Raymond Chen

Have you checked out AMD's ads for their AMD Athlon 64 FX processor? The copy reads, "My adrenalin fix isn't what it used to be. Double the dose. AMD me." And it has a picture of a tough-looking guy glaring at the camera, challenging the reader to do their worst.

But take a look at what's on his screen. It's a giant command window. Now look at what this adrenalin junkie has been typing into his command window:

```
Microsoft Windows XP [Version 5.1.2600]
(C) Copyright 1985-2001 Microsoft Corp.
C:\>fg
'fg' is not recognized as an internal or external command,
operable program or batch file.
C:\>
C:\>
C:\>
C:\>
C:\>sdf
'sdf' is not recognized as an internal or external command,
operable program or batch file.
C:\>sdf
'sdf' is not recognized as an internal or external command,
operable program or batch file.
C:\>
C:\>
C:\>df
'df' is not recognized as an internal or external command,
operable program or batch file.
```

Wow, he's a real l33t h4x0r he iz.

Raymond Chen

Follow