Post suggestions for future topics here instead of posting off-topic comments. Note that the suggestion box is emptied and read periodically so don't be surprised if your suggestion vanishes. (Note also that I am under no obligation to accept any suggestion.)

Topics I are more inclined to cover:

- Windows history (particularly the Windows 95 era).
- Windows user interface programming in Win32, and shell programming in particular.
- General programming topics (selectively).
- Issues of general interest.
- My personal hobbies.

Topics I am not inclined to cover:

- The blog software itself. You can send feedback about `.Text` to its author, Scott Watermasysk.
- Internet Explorer. You can try IE folks like Tony Schreiner, jeffdav, and Dave Massy.
- Visual Studio. You can try one of the Visual Studio blogs.
- Non-software Microsoft topics, such as product support policies, marketing tactics, and hiring policy.
- Microsoft software that isn't Windows. (Exchange, Office, ...)
- Windows topics outside user interface programming. (Plug and Play, Terminal Services, Windows Messenger, Outlook Express, SQL, IIS, remoting, SOA...)
- User interface programming in anything other than Win32. (Because I know nothing about it.)
- Debugging a specific problem. (Not of general interest.)
- Legal issues.
- Predictions for the future. (What's the title of this blog again?)
