

News flash: The heart produces urine

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20060926-19

September 26, 2006

Raymond Chen

In an attempt to explain why astronaut Heidemarie Stefanyshyn-Piper fainted during a welcome ceremony, ABC News reported

The heart of an average person on Earth pumps blood throughout the body. But when an astronaut is in space, Levine explained, the blood remains predominantly in their chest cavity. Because of this, he said, the heart tries to get rid of excess blood through urination.

Raymond Chen

Follow

