

Adventures in product testing: This phone's so hot, it'll set your head on fire

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20081119-01

November 19, 2008

Raymond Chen

Actually, this is pretty cool. A phone that sets your head on fire. Most people charge extra for that.

These lithium-ion polymer batteries can overheat due to an internal short circuit in the batteries, which can pose a fire hazard. The battery has only been used in the GN9120 wireless headset.

Go ahead, make up your own joke.

Raymond Chen

Follow

