

Then again, sometimes the improvement is merely incremental

 devblogs.microsoft.com/oldnewthing/20081225-00

December 25, 2008

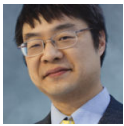

Raymond Chen

Several years ago, the security department sent out a company-wide memo:

Over the next few months, we will be upgrading the card readers on all of our major campuses. The old card readers show a solid red light when the door is locked, whereas the new card readers show a blinking red light.

Aw-right, a blinking light. Now we're cookin' with gas!

Raymond Chen

Follow